God said, "the difference between the holy and unholy." Do all men to-day distinguish rightly between things sacred and profane, holy and unholy, between temperance and intemperance? I am quite certain they do not. Newspapers tell us of frauds in the pulpit. The Church should guard God's aliars. I have seen them descerated in this city by venat evangelists. God will not hold him guitless who takes His name in vain. Temperance people make more of the above sad incident than is authorized by reason or Scripture. They teach "total abstinence"; God teaches no such thins. To say that a priest shall not take wine just before going to service at the altar clearly teaches he may take it at other times. Paul says the sick should take it, when necessary. Christ himself drank it, and made fifteen gallons of it for others to drink. The Jewish prophets condemned the merchants for mixing water with the wine sold. Our temperance friends would prefer it all water. They are not orthodox. They know not the Scriptures. Ecclesiastics ix. 7; "Eat they bread with joy and drink thy wine with a merry heart, for God now accepteth thy works. Let thy garments be always white."

To the Editor of the Dispatch:

I have read the comments in the city papers regarding the effort of Chief-of-Police Howard to see that the laws against gambling and the violation of the Sabbath in our city are enforced. For one, I wish to thank our Chief of Police for the noble stand he has taken, and I hone that he will not grow weary in well-doing. All honer to a public officer who, knowing the right, dare to do it.

I notice that Mayor Taylor wants to pose as the champion of justice and equality among all classes.

Every man of fair intelligence knows that all laws should be given a reasonable construction, and not a ridiculous one.

Gratification compels us to utter a compliment to the Richmond Dispatch on its last Sunday edition. Sixteen pages neatly printed and pasted so as to be handly perused. It contained the best telegraphic report we ever saw-pages of foreign news of interest and importance, national news, and a complete report of State happenings. Also were scattered throughout the paper columns galore of solid and light reading, so that it was a good three hours' pleasure to take it up. The Dis-

Ohic look to you as an oracle on mone-tary matters. Can you not say some-thing so simple that all can understand, and yet so clear that none may misun-

"Well, we are for bimetallism. That ought to be clear and brief enough." And then the venerable senator explained his bimetallism as follows: "The Republican party in the national platform of 1822 demanded good money of equal purchasing power, whether coined of equal purchasing power, whether coined of silver or gold, or composed of United Sistes notes and national-bank notes, hased upon the credit of the United States, maintained at par with coin. This is the bimetallic policy. There we stand today, I hope and trust there we will stand today. We will seek the co-operation of the control to-day. We will seek the co-operation of all nations and of all parties in main-taining the parity of gold and silver coins. If they will not co-operate with us in this policy, the Republican party can, and I do hope will, do it alone. Good money and plenty of it is as important to all people as equality of rights and privi-lexes."

So Mr. Sherman strongly favors international bimetallism, or co-operative silver columne, and will fight for it, but will advocate coinage by this country alone if he cannot secure the former.

In 1888 there died in Richmond, Va., a In 1885 there died in Richmond, Va., a man whom about two thirds of the late Congress should have taken for their model. His name was William A. Smith. He once resigned a seat in Congress because he thought he had not sense enough properly to represent his constituents.—From the Milwaukee Sculinel.

Richmond has been the home of a large number of great men, and Smith is an old and honored name amongst us, but we never before heard of this distinguished gentleman. And such merit as could not have been hidden under a bushel. John Ambler Smith, a very young man, represented this district in Congress for one term-1573-1875, we believebut he did not resign. On the contrary, he sought re-election, and falled. No, Richmond is not entitled to the honor awarded by the Sentinel. Try Richmond, Me. or Richmond, Ind., or Richmond,

He began at this work in 1858, and continued a year with the grading corps, but he made use of his opportunities and studied engineering under the assistant engineer in charge. He was soon made clerk to the agents of the branch line. In 1862 he beame assistant to the chief of the tunnel and bridge department of the Louisville and Nashville. From 1865 to 1870 he was agent and cashier of the Adams Express Company at Chattanooga, and it was there that he first began to learn the traffic business of railroads. For twelve years he was with the Louisville and Nashville as agent. From October, 1885, to 1890, he was third vice-president of the Louisville and Nashville system. In January, 1862, he was elected commissioner of the Southern Railway and Steamship Association, having been out of service only two years, spending most of that time in Europe.

Mirabile Marable. Solomon Marable is a great liar. First one tale and then another was told by him as to how Mrs. Pollard was murdered. But we take it that the Lunenburg jury did not depend upon Solomon's testimony alone when they convicted his accomplices, the women. The jury would hardly have found the women guilty upon Solomon's unsupported testimony, and if they had done so the Judge wouldn't have permitted the verdict to stand. We may be sure that there was important evidence supporting Solomon's statement. The telegraphic reports of the trial sent the Dispatch substantiate this view. Furthermore, not one of the accused established an alibi. It is, of course, unfortunate that the prisoners, especially the women, had no ounsel, but as far as he could with propriety do so, the presiding judge looked after the interests of the accused, and quite as well as the average attorney could have done.

Hear them in defence of their cause. Strike if you will, but examins their records and see if they deserve the condemnation applied to them?

If Mr. Gorman is such a man as his enemies represent him to be, how does it happen that with the administration opposed to him, the Republicans fighting him, and the so-called independents traducing him, he nevertheless keeps his "grip" upon the leaders of the grand old Democratic party in his own State?

Good News from the South.

The New York Commercial and Financial Chronicle of Saturday last has the following encouraging item. We quote: "We are informed by leading bankers that there is some inquiry from the West and South for loans. The increasing activity in those sections is rapidly absorbing the surplus in local banks, and the demand for crop-moving purposes will soon be felt at this centre. Anticipating this there is already a tendency to hard-ening of rates."

Dr. J. P. Gibbons, of Syracuse, originator of a system of resuscitating victims of electric shock, says that he had partly resuscitated the electrocuted negro Johnson after he was pronounced dead, but the warden of Auburn prison interfered and prevented further efforts. In consequence of a newspaper interview given out by Mr. E. St. John, vicepresident of the Scaboard Air-Line, in What comment Vice-President St. John will make upon this letter of Mr. Spencer's remains to be seen, but it is clear that there is no very good feeling be tween the head men of these two important lines.

Democrats More Hopeful.

We think there can be no doubt that the Democrats are more hopeful now then they were a few months ago. The cry of "hard times" has lost its potency, and has been succeeded by a new condition of things which reomises to show to the beneath the belt, two full ends falling Democrats the path they must pursue it below; the front and gidle is of velvet; they expect or desire to elect the next elbow sleeves. Seven yards of single-President and Congress.

Ex-Senator Camden, of West Virginia, a shrewd, sharp politician of the practical kind, sums up the po-litical situation in a few words. He says that two or three months ago he would not have given a copper for the chances of the Democratic party, but that since then there has been a marked change in public sentiment, due largely to the improvement in business prospects throughout the country. He adds that cattle (West Virginia raises many cattle) have gone up, as have wheat, iron, and cotton. "All these things redound to the credit of the Democratic party," says Mr. Camden, and his belief is that that party will triumph in 1896.

From the far-off Northwest comes a like hopeful utterance. That section has been supposed to be ready to cut loose from the Democratic party on the silver question, and a serious defection was feared. But the St. Paul Globe tells us that there is a revival of courage and confidence everywhere discernible amongst Democrats, and that this revival has a solid foundation. "Those Democrats who had abandoned all hope of success next year are now becoming confident of it," In fact, our St. Paul contemporary claims that the silver question no longer threatens to destroy the integrity of the Democratic party. All good Democrats should, at least, come to the conclusion that the condition of things now existing would not justify the Democrats in dividing this year on the silver question, nor on what that paper styles "the larger question of the currency."

Just here let us call the attention of our readers to the fact that the Globe, an administration organ to the backbone, testifies that the Democrats stand with the currency policy commended by the President and the Secretary of the Treasury. This policy involves the divorce of the government from banking, but calls for strict Federal supervision of the projected new State-bank system.

Returning to Virginia, we quote from that sterling Democratic paper, the Staun-that sterling Democratic paper, the Staunton Vindicator, as follows:

"When the last Congress adjourned there was not one Virginia Democrat out of a hundred—you might say a thousand—who had the slightest hope of electing a Democratic President in 1836. Now there's not one out of a hundred who doesn't hope to elect him. The times have improved, the tariff is working well, the President has kept the ship steady and gotten more ballast in the Treasury, there is more skilled employment all over the country, wages that shrunk so in the hard times are being raised everywhere, common labor is finding work, wool under the new tariff has about doubled its price, wheat is 20 cents better than it was it it ime last year, beef holds its price, well—all things are better.

"All this compared with last year, Compare next year with this, next July, and the change will be still more marked—there won't be a peg to hang a hard times complaint on, anywhere. And then the Democrats will be as keen as greyhounds for victory in the presidential race."

A police raid was made recently on one of several fashionable night-clubs in London, opening at midnight and closing at 6 A. M., and a hundred men and women, all in evening dress, were captured. They kindled the incense not from the sacred fire always burning in the tabernacle, contrary to God's express command, and were struck dead before the altar to show His righteous indignation. God commanded Aaron, the father and high priest, and his two other sons, who were present also, not to mourn the fate of their two brothers, but that the two second cousins should wrap them up just as they fell, in their priently robes, and bury them without the camp.
